This makes a total of fifty-six now in jail here and it is supposed that as many more have been apprehended at other parts along the line. Consternation prevails among the proprietors of "fences" and dens where the goods were secreted and sold. In one instance proprietors of a notorious den were detected in the act of burning stolen property. Nearly 200 warrants are still out and it is expected that the list of arrests in this city will be swelled to 90.

A number of houses in various parts of the city were raided today and a large quantity of goods recovered. Every man arrested had

How THE ROBBERIES WERE MADE.

John H. Hampton, attorney for the Penn-tectives were placed on the work. We had siready discovered that the robbers were employes of the company. In September there were eighty crews of freight trains on the PanHandle railroad, coming into Pittsburg. Of these eighty crews, no less than seventy-five were found to be crooked.

A crew consists of a conductor, flagman and two brakemen. In some cases all the men were involved, in others only a part. The statement that engineers and firemen were mixed up in the robberies is wroug. Not a single one is involved. Goods were obtained by thieves in various ways. In many instances scals were broken, while in others hatchets were used to cut a hole in the car, through which the men crawled and took what they coveted. Then they reported the car in bad condition, claiming that the hole had been made by accident. The operations were all the result of a combination. Arrangements were carefully made, and each rascal was assigned to his particular part of the work, in the same way as a robbery is committed. Ido not know that the members of the combination were oath bound or anything of that kird, but it is certain that a thorough understanding existed among them, and they acted in concert to cover each other's midding The third the members.

a thorough understanding existed among them, and they acted in concert to cover each other's misdoings. The thing which alarmed us more than anything else was that they stole large quantities of whisky and drank it in their houses. They needed vessels to hold liquor, so they stole milk cans and kept it in them. Not daring to keep whisky openly in the cars, they tore up the flooring and hid it underneath. Men were continually reported drank on duty, and the probability of disaster was some hing fearful to contemplate. All kinds of goods were stolen, including sewing machines, guns, revolvers, cutlery, silverware, eigans, clothing, "liquors, groccaies, furniture, and in fact every imaginable article that can be carried on a car were quietly removed.

ARRESTING THE THIEVES.

'Depredations were committed all along the med, and losers reside at points as far west as Denver. Fences were established in this city where the stolen property was taken and then rold, the money being evenly divided among the crews. It is impossible to give the aggregate value of property stolen, but it will not reach $500,000 as reported. The arrests have stated the greatest excitement among railroad employees of this city. The scenes about the jail deors this morning, where relatives of the prisoners had gathered to learn the can es of their arrests, were of the saddest descriptions.

stolen goods somewhere. Among the prisoners sie several desperate characters, who were wanted by the police for other offenses. They were all armed and when not taken by surprise resisted arrest. Numbers overpowered them and all were safely lodged in jail. The most important arrest made was Brakeman Young. He called at the jail to see one of the prisoners this morping and was immediately locked up. At first he protested that he was innocent, but finally admitted that he had a large lot of property at his house and told how the goods come into his possession. The confession, it is said, will convict thirteen crews.

Telegrams from Cadiz, Stenbenville and other places, report the arrest of a large number of railread men implicated in the robberies. A preliminary hearing will be held on April 18. Specials from Dennison, Ohio, report the arrest there of J. R. Donlap, leader of a gang and also of James and W. Colles, with several thousands of dollers worth of velvets and high priced dry goods in their passession. The articles were taken from United States bonded cars enroute to Chicago, St. Louis and other points west. One Busby, the worst man in the gang, slipped his handcuffs and recklessly threw himself from the train whilst it was going and escaped.

To Joseph Rue, special agent of the Pennsylvania railroad, and detective Gelkerson, of this city, is due all the credit of running the thieves down. In an interview with Mr. Rue this evening he gave the following account of the inception of the robberies, their detection, medus operandi of their execution, etc. Mr. Rue said.

HOW THEY MANAGED THE SEALS. 'Two years ago we decided to dispense with locks on ears and introduced our present system of seals. The seal is of lead, and is about the size of a five cent nickel, and is about one-eighth of an inch in thickness. The wire used in connection with it is one sixtenth inch iron wire. There are curls in it to prevent its being pulled through the lead seal. The wire is passed through the seal, then through the hasp of the car doors, then back through the hasp of the car doors, then back through the seal again, forming a circle. An instrument then is used in impressing the seals. That in use, say in Pittsburg, stamps upon the reverse side the letters "P. C., T.R.," and upon the opposite side "P. St. L." This indicated that the car was intact when it entered the Pittsburg, Circinnati and St. Louis reliroad bound westward. Two wires are impressions of the pittsburg of the car was intended to the pittsburg, circinnati and St. Louis reliroad bound westward. Two wires are impressions the car was intended to the car was silroad bound westward. Two wires are im-edded at the same stroke as the letters are apprinted. Eastern bound trains have been sufferers. As near as we can estimate, these robbetics have been going on for two years. At first there was timidity and they only occurred at long intervals; then daily growing bolder and more general until just lately every train was sufferer. We became cognizant of the robbetics through claims submitted by the New York railroad on the strength of their vector, ensteaders allegations of broken nacks. sestern customers, allegations of broken pack-ges both in bulk and in severalty, the evi-dence in each case being positive that the pack-ges were opened in transit. We were puzzled ong time by the robberies as our reports from western points showed that the seals were though seemingly intact. For long time, we defined the extractions of goods upon the rousalways seemingly intact. For long time, we blamed the extractions of goods upon the roustabouts at piers twenty-seven and twenty-eight, in New York, and the Dock street station, at Philadelphia, as nearly all of our western bound freight was put in cars at one or the other of these three places. We employed detectives and all imaginable devices and found finally that our employes at these points were there suspicion. Finally, we found that the robberies were committed between Pittsburg and Dennison; that out of eighty crews, seventy-five were practicing a gigantic scheme of robbery. We were badly stalled at first by the fact that Salson cars were generally found intact when the cars reached Colum bus on their way westward. Then commenced a system of espionage on every mile of siding between here and Dennison. Day and night the watch continued, meanwhile marked and decoy goods were used. We found that local freight was generally untouched; that the robberies were committed on union line shipments.

One day, Mr. Knight, one of our brightest men, stumbled against the mystery of the seals and the method by which they were successifully tampered with. Concealed behind a car, he saw a freight crew come to a Union line cr. The wire was pulled out of the seal door, was thrown back and the carentered. In a short time the men emerged carrying a lot of plunder. They made off to the caboose and the conductor pulled back the door, ran the wire through the seal where it had been pulled out, and with a board struck it a blow.

with a hoard struck it a blow. The wire went back to its place, the blow united the soft lead again with-out destroying the lettering on either side. The seal was apparently untouched. I saw one of these and it was by the closest scrutiny that a person could detect—signs of tampering

"All this made clear, our course was much "All this made clear, our course was much easier. The individuals of these crews were each of them tracked down, and so closely were the stolen goods located that out of all the arrests we made last night and this morning, there was not one man but had stolen sufficient upon him or in his room. We have our hands on every thievish employ, and we are in easy reach of these who are not arrested. I can give a few illustrations of the spirit of these employes. In one case just lately, pursuit was so a few illustrations of the spirit of the solu-pleyes. In one case just lately, pursuit was so hot that twenty five boxes of fine cigars were lastily burned in a caboose stove. In another case a "tip" resulted in two bolts of fine silk being thrown from a caboose into the Monongabela river, while crossing the Panhandle bridge.

HE HAD AN EAR FOR MUSIC "In another instance a crew broke open a car and found it full of organs. One of the men enraged by finding nothing of a stealable kind, thrust an iron bar into an organ and ruined it. We have evidence that a freight conductor broke into a car, opened a pisno and sast and played it all night stopping at midnight to cat his supper off of the polished top.

'The same fellow was thumping a piano in a dive last night when captured. Another brakeman, who lives on Wylie avenue stole a bolt of cloth, had a suit made for himself, and gave cloth for two other suits to his friends. Another man has become an expert on a stolen accordeon. In all my experience of twentyaccorded. In all my experience of very mine years, I never saw such tasts for miscellaneous stealing. Everything, except a coffin and a blacksmith's anvil, has been stolen and made use of. Some of our detectives assured me this morning that not a man was arrested, but had from a half a dozen that deep register clean socks of the finest. to a dezen pairs of clean socks of the finest quality and a large assortment of shirts of all

The thieves who were not arrested at their The thieves who were not arrested at their homes, were taken from their trains. To do this it was necessary to display a red light at Second avenue crossing and side-track the trains as they came in. This was so quickly executed that when the shivering crew mustered on the little platform to ask what the red light meant they early see distenting on the wrists of each the platform to ask what the red light meant they could see glistening on the wrists of oach other, the fearful implements of justice by which the officers gathered them together. The conductor and brakeman looked aghast at each other as the guilty knowledge of their crimes came before them. Train after train was side-tracked until the alleged thieves were pulled and caboose cars, containing many evidences of the long-continued depredations were cut loose and searched. A combination to rob a freight train necessitated guilty knowledge and actual participation of the conductor, middle brakemen, (one or more) and knowledge and actual participation of the conductor, middle brakemen, (one or more) and the rear brakeman or flagman. It did not, of necessity, take in the front brakeman or flagman, nor the engineer or fireman, but others had to be in to make it work, and it did work. It was not required that they should wreck trains to rob.

They were finer-fingered operators than that.

They were no more gatherers-up of scattered goods, like the mob who carried off hams at the riots. Every excuse, which they knew could not well be denied, was given for the broken cars when they neglected, which they frequently did, to seal or lock them up, and again, government-bonded cars were broken, perhaps oftsner than fordinary Union Line or common freight cars. In these, they always knew they would get the choice goods. Silks, cigars, rifler, all kinds of imported firearms and caddies of tobacco, seemed to be some of their necessities. Boxes of shoes, and the general run of merchants' supplies for their every day use, were found openly in the caboses cars of each train. Hundreds of boxes, which had contained the finest of imported cigars, were found on these trains, boldly used by the men to hold their caps and overalls and lanterns and stoff. So bold had they become that the United States regulations, strict as they are, had lost all terror for them, whilst the custom house efficers were trying to trace goods, and merchants here and elsewhere corresponding with shippers, and special agents were wondering how this could possibly be, and loading down letter books with theories which flew around as indefinite as smoke. The operators smoked their Havanas within the very shadow of the court or custom house, and laughed at their masters who suffered the loss."

Word was telegraphed along the road for particulars of each case. Freight trains have hauled up at water stations and delay made till the caboose was swept and garnished, and in doing so evidence has been progred against unascented. dence has been procured against unsuspected railroad men, which it will be hard to over-turn. Almost every man arrested had from one to ten pawn tickets for all sorts of articles one to ten pawn tickets for all sorts of articles on his person. It is alleged that every pawn shop in the two cities of Pittsburg and Allegheny is represented on the tickets. An amount of several thousand dollars is said to be recoverable in this way alone. About the Pan Handle yards today there was a scene of quietness that indicated that something unusual had happened. Where there is usually a scene of noisy bustle crows of men that had been arrested had left a large number of trains deserted. The detention of freight, however, was only temporary. Railhowever, was only temporary. Rail-road officers had taken special pre-cautions to continue moving their freights promptly. An extra force of sixty men had been employed. These were put on the de-serted trains in place of the arrested employes. When it became generally known that a large number of men had been arrested, applicants for positions commenced to flock to the depot by the score.

At a late hour tonight J. R. Dunlap, who is regarded as a ring leader of the gang, made a confession to the detectives in which he implicated several outsiders and located "fences" as Dennison, Ohio, New Philadelphia and other places.

THE PENNSYLVANIA'S BOYCOTT TO BE CARRIED TO THE COURTS. The Interstate Law's Discriminating Clause—Chicago Westbound Lines Go Into an Arrangement With the Grand Trunk, Whereby Old Bates Are Entered Into Again.

CHICAGO, April 11 .- On account of a disagreement between the eastern and western lines regarding divisions of rates on business from the seaboard to the Missouri river and beyond, which resulted in the lines quoting local rates up to and west of Chicago and the diversion of a large amount of this class of business to St. Louis routes, via which city rates were from 2 to 8 cents per hundred lower, Chicago west-bound lines have concluded an arrangement with the Grand Trunk whereby old rates and divisions are entered into sgain. This will give the Grand Trunk control of business unless other eastern lines yield the point they have been fighting over. THROUGH TO COLUMBUS, MISS. !!

THE ARREST OF VINCENT. Queer Stories as to How it Was Brought

MONTGOMERY, Ala, April 11 .- [Special.] -Montgomery, Ala, April 11.—[Special.]—An exceedingly newsy and sensational report got out here this morning. It was to the effect that L. S. Smith, living at Opelika, had received a letter from a brother in Weatherford, Texas, throwing some new light on the celebrated Vincent case. It was reported that the Mr. Smith in Texas wrote his brother to the effect that he was approached some weeks ago by a Mr. Richards, who is a relative and friend of Vincent's, and asked if he would not enter an agreement to bring Vincent's family; that he (Smith) derinded the proposition. Doubt has been freely expressed as to the truthfulness of the story of Vincent's capture, and it has received new support and impetus by the it has received new support and impetus by the report. THE PRESIDENT'S FISHERY LETTER What the Toronto Globe Has to Say of the Document. TORONTO, Ont., April 11 .- The Globe today

Toronto, Ont., April 11.—The Globe today says:

The letter of President Cleveland to the president of the fishery union is a remarkable and important document. It is not such a letter as Americans interested in the fisheries desired to receive from the president, but the letter was evidently intended as a warning to Canadians, also. While we desire that the rights of Canadians, also, while we desire that the rights of Canadians, also, while we desire that the rights of Canadians, also, while we desire that the rights of Canadians, also, while we desire that the rights of Canadians, also, while we desire that the rights of Canadians, also, while we desire that the rights of Canadians, also, while we experience unjust or unfriendly treatment from those employed in the protection of our rights. It would be folly, however, to put out of sight the fact that many in the United States, including, apparently, the president himself and members of his cabinet, assert that fishermen of the United States have rights in our waters which we believe they have not under the terms of the treaty now in force, and that there are privileges to which they are entitled, in the opinion of the president, to which we say they have no title, whatever. From this misunderstanding if we assert what we believe to be our rights, greater misunderstandings may arise. This letter, although studiously moderate in tone, this misunderstanding what may follow. The positionis, to say the least, exceedingly serious.

DROWNED IN A CISTERN. A Memphis Watchman Charged With the Death of Two Negro Boys.

MEMPHS. April 11. — Saturday evening. Robert Steele, a watchman of the Memphis oil works, on entering the warehouse of the Chickasaw Refining company, heard a splash-Chickasaw Refining company, heard a splashing in an abandoned cistern that had been uncovered by the wreck of a portion of the flooring. Looking in he saw a negro boy as he sank, drowning in the water. He summoned several of the colored laborers on the premises and with their aid fished up the body of the boy, whose name proved to be Willie Bryant and his age fifteen years. Sunday the body of another colored boy, Willie King, was found in the cistern. An inquest was held on the two bodies and a verdict of accidental drowning returned. The mother of Bryant claims that she can show that F. M. Mills, a watchman at the warehouse, drove the boys into the cistern and stood there and saw them drown without offering to rescue them. Her husband has sworn out a warrant against Mills, charging sworn out a warrant against Mills, charging him with murder. Mills is under arrest.

The Virginia Debt Conference. AGAINST COERCION.

THE LARCEST MEETING EVER HELD IN LONDON. Over One Hundred and Fifty Thousand People at the Byde Park Demonstration-Speaking From Fourteen Stands-Resolutions Denounc-ing the Coercion Bill-Other News.

LONDON, April 11, 1 p. m.-The day appointed for the great demonstration in London against the Irish coercion bill now before the house of commons opened brilliantly, the weather being balmy and the sun shining brightly. Vast crowds of people are marching toward Hyde park, where the meeting is to be held, from every direction of London, with bands, banness and carriages filled with leaders in the day's exercises. The utmost enthusiasm prevails in the great throngs. Many of the banners exhibited bear portraits of Mr.

and the inscription: "Justice for Ireland." Platforms for the use of fourteen orators have been erected in Hyde Park and occupy the whole frontage facing the fashionable Park lane. All those taking part in the procession from East to West End, London, wore green rosettes to imitate the emblem of shamrock. A large force of police is held in reserve for emergency. SPEAKING FROM FOURTEEN STANDS. The gathering in Hyde park this afternoon was the largest ever held in London. The people were enthusiastic but orderly. A motion protesting against the coercion bill was offered simultaneously from fourteen plat-forms and carried amid great enthusiasm. Tae socialists stole a march on the police and ers delivered orations. They afterwards held a noisy meeting in Trafalgar square.

Mrs. Gladstone watched the anti-coercion procession from a window in Piccadilly and erected platforms from which several speak-was given an ovation by the men in line.

The number in attendance at the meeting vary, but it is certain that 150,000 persons, including lookers-on, were present. The procession took an hour and a half to file into the park. The first contingent was composed of members of the Robert Emmet lodge. Then followed a large numbers of Light reasonable. members of the Kobert Emmet loage. Then followed a large number of Irish temperance lodges, radical workmen's clubs and social democratic societies. Numerous ban'ts of music were in the line. While passing the music were in the line. While passing the Carlton and other conservative clubs, the bands played the Dead March in Saul and the Marsellaise. Green banners and Irish national emblems were conspicuous in the ranks of the paralers. Among the mottoes displayed on the banners of the radicals were these: "Justice to Ireland;" "Friendships not bayonets;" "No coercion." The effect of the careful arrangements that had been made to avoid confusion at the cion." The effect of the careful arrangements that had been made to avoid confusion at the park was seen in the admirable order in which the paraders grouped themselves around the fourteen platforms. The greatest throng gathered at the platform, from which Lord Mayor Sullivan, of Dublin, and Connibeare and William Redmond, members of parliament, spoke, Lord Mayor Sullivan, in the course of a most effective speech, asked:

"Is it the wish of the working tenantry of re-that the honest, hard working tenantry of fre-land shall be forever crushed down?"

A tremendous responsive "no" resounded throughout the park. The mention of the queen as about to celebrate her jubilee by signing away the liberties of the people of Ireland brought forth a torrent of hisses, and the mention of Chamberlain's name aroused a tempest of groans and hisses, with cries of

"traitor."

Mr. Sullivan, in concluding, assured his hearers that the demonstration would carry hope and joy into the hearts of the Irish. It would cheer every poor struggling man to know that England was no enemy of Irisand. "In return," he said, "don't let them believe those who say the Irish are the mortal, implacable enemies of England. That is a falsehood, worthy of the bottomless pit. [Cheers.] Let there be an end of oppit. [Cheers.] Let there be an end of op-pression and injustice, and there will be an end of hatred." [Prolonged cheering] Michael Davitt appeared at the socialist platform. He referred to the demonstration as proof of the approaching solidarity of the people of Great Britain and Ireland. In the proportion as they began to understand each other, politi-cians became alarmed. The privileged class well know the invariable tendency of the move-ment and sought to crush the Irish leaders, hoping to prevent the English people follow-ing the example set them by the Irish. But they would hold the fort in Ireland. On the they would hold the fort in Ireland. On the day on which the crimes act should become a law, they would either have to give up the struggle that had been waged for centuries and lie down as slaves, or render the system impossible of duration. They would follow the manifercourse. Classes had in the past built a bridge of hate across the Irish sea. People would pull it down and erect a bridge of love between the toilers of Ireland and the honest workers of England. [Cheers.]

Tollers of Ireland and the honest workers of England. [Cheers.]

John Burns, a socialist leader, followed Mr., Davitt. He declared that the state of Ireland justified civil war and that the English people were ready to assist the Irish peasants in the LONDON, April 12.—The Daily News, commenting on the Hyde park demonstration, says?

"The demonstration shows that the bulk of the working population of London have returned to hearly co-operation with the liberal party, determined to do justice to Ireland. That is the sufficient and enabling reason for which they gave no their holiday. They refused to take their case while infiguitions oppression was being done in their name."

The Telegraph says:

"Justice must be done to the carnestness of those who took part in the demonstration, but a closer examination of the question could not fall to convince them that the government is not trying to tyrannize over anybody, but is trying to emancipate honest farmers and tradesmen from a subtle and cowardly form of tyranny."

Mr. Caine Speaks.

Mr. Caine Speaks.

London, April 11.—Mr. William S Caine, chief "whip" of the liberal-unionist party in parliament, spoke today in Howick. He blamed Mr. Gladstone for supporting obstructive tactics in the house of commons. He said that the secundrels who were committing outrages in Ireland were not brought to justice, although their neighbors knew them to be guilty. The unionists would not have supported coercion unless the government had proposed a remedial bill. They preferred conservative measures to the bill introduced by Mr. Gladstone.

Parliament's Undersecretary.

Parliament's Undersecretary.

London, April 11.—The position to which Mr. King Harman has just been appointed, that of perliamentary undersecretary, is a newly created office, to which no salary is attached. A bill will be introduced in parliament, however, providing an emolument for this office. Sir Redvers Buller is still undersecretary for Ireland, his successor not having been chosen yet. Sir William Kane, now assistant undersecretary, will probably be appointed to the office.

LONDON, April 11.—The Daily News statement that Lord Dunraven and Lord Balfour, of Burleigh, were engaged in drafting a scheme of local self-government for Ireland is authoritatively contradicted.

Rogers, administrator, vs. Rogers et al. Equity, from Hall. Wills. Demurrer. New Trial. Evidence. Title. Written Instruments. (Before Judge Estes.)
Hall, J.—1. Where a bill in equity was filed, setting up title under a will, although it did not appear by any direct allegation that the paper exhibited as a copy of the will had ever been proved, this might perhaps have been inferred from the paper itself and from the fact that the defendant was acting as the administrator with the will annexed of the testator; and a demurrer to the bill for want of equity was properly overruled on that ground.

(a.) The overruling of a demurrer, even if wrong, is no ground for a new trial before a jury. 17 Ga., 97.

2. A testator left a will containing the following item: "To the children of my son George I will and bequeath the south half of lot of land No. 80 on the east side of Flat Creek, being the other half of the same lot given to William and Cinthia, and also the south half of lot of land No. 65; also all the land contained in eighty-one west side of the old run of Flat Creek."

Park vs. Snyder, Harris, Bassett & Co., claim, from Dade, Debtor and Creditor. Fraud Deeds. Mortgages. Liens. Charge of Court. (Before Judge Fain.)
Hall, J.—Where, in a claim case, the question was whether the defendant in fi fa had transferred the property levied on in fraud of his creditors, and whether the claimant took with notice thereof, and where a deed from certain persons to the defendant in fi. fa. was introduced in evidence, and showed on its face that the consideration thereof was $50 paid in cash and the giving of certain promisory notes, cash and the giving of certain promisory notes, and a lien was expressly declared and retained upon the land conveyed to secure the payment of the notes, and where there was evidence to show that the person taking a conveyance under the defendant had paid such of these notes as became due and, were presented, it was error to charge that such a deed did not constitute and was not a mortgage on the property described therein for the notes for the unpaid purchase money. The lien, if it existed, was a fact which might have gone to explain the bona fides of the purchase and the possession by the vendee of the defendant of the derd from him to her. The charge cut off the jury from the consideration of the effect of this fact and other attendant circumstances. 34 Ga., 279, 355, 258, 369.

Bargains in Real Estate. We have looked over the entire field, and have skimmed off the cream in the way of bargains in city and suburban property we briefly re-fer to them below. Many people are buying homes and some business property, while many others are wanting lots that will pay good profits. To such we can confidently say the follow ing will do: A four room house, corner lot on Mills street that must be sold within a week. This is desirable, a good place and rents well.

Two nice cottages on large, well shaded lots, splendid shade trees, fruit, gardens, water, etc., good neighborhood on Taylor's Hill, rents well to good tenants and will pay twelve per cent on the

A beautiful unimproved lot on Peachtree near learned's new house, 55x350, the owner wants to

Nicely shaded lot on Peachtree, 400 feet front, as pretty as a picture, will be sold cheap. Three large manufacturing sites on the Western and Atlantic railroad that will always be in de-mand.;

Seven room house on large lot on Whitehall, well improved, convenient, fruit, flowers, splendid well and excellent neighborhood. The owner is compelled to realize soon, and will sell at very low figures.

Four unimproved lots on Pryor, well shaded, high point, good surroundings and must be sold. Thirty-two acres near Georgia railroad outside the city, which must be sold at some price within a few days; the owner is hard up.

New four room house on Gartrell street that is very desirable, conveniently located to business. Splendid home, ten acres, near street cars on mecademized road, fronting beautifully on railroad, good improvements large variety of best froits, first class surroundings, owner anxious to sell at once.

Get Up Antus-ments General News

From All Parts of the State. OXFORD, Ga., April 11.-[Special.]-In an interview with your correspondent, Dr. Hopkins, our president, made essentially the following statement in reference to the different fraternities giving banquets at our approaching commencement:

There is no law prohibiting fraternity banquets, but the board of trustees enacted a law prohibiting the college buildings from being d for that purpose. The board of trustees had the matter under consideration at their session last commencement and, after a full nvestigation and discussion, would have taken action towards passing a law prohibiting fraternity banquets henceforth; but I asked them to leave the matter in my hands and I could control it without strenuous laws. This they did. Now, I am opposed to banquets because they entail an expense greater than our boys are able to bear and are more trouble than beneficial. I know of no fraternity that will give a banquet, and I am satisfied that the boys will not persist in having them when my wishes are known."

Those clubs which have taken action in the matter have decided not to have a banquet, and there is no club, here that will go contrary to Dr. Hopkins's wishes.

In view of the fact that the absence of banquets would render our commen sement tame and cause a great many visitors to stay away, there is a movement on foot among the students to have a pan Hellenic banquet to be given by voluntary subscribers, and already enough has been subscribed to insure a ban-quet. It is certain that Dr. Hopkins will not eppose a banquet on this plan, but approve it, and if he does approve it, it will be made an eminent success by those who have it in

The students are also agitating the question of lighting the campus with Japanese lanterns for a "grand levee" for Wednesday night of commencement and this will more than compensate for the absence of fraternity banquets. There will be plenty amusements for visitors There will be plenty amusements for visitors and we urge them to come and promise that their cups shall be filled to the brim with pleas-

BARNESVILLE'S PROSPERITY. The City on the High Road of Improve-

BARNESVILLE, Ga., April 11.—[Special.]— Barnesville is undoubtedly on a solid boom. Along in the seventies the word "Barnesville" was a synonym for pluck, thrift and business capacity. The merchants in our neighboring towns stood discontentedly in the deserted streets and wished they lived in Barnesville. The average drummer's heart was gladdened when he and his grip struck here because he was sure of a snug order. But the fire of 188t came along and licked up over a hundred thousand dollars at one fell breath. This paralyzed business for the time, of course. Our farmers were obliged to go to the adjoining towns for supplies on a credit, as our merchants, having lost so heavily, were unable to indulge them. We have the best school in the state, having over two hundred pupils in attendance from every southern state. The city, too, pays the tuition, the student being only required to pay a nominal sum each term. capacity. The merchants in our neighboring cach term.

Our people are busy organizing a "Farmer's Loan association." The object of this association is to loan the farmers who trade with us money at a low rate of interest, thus enabling them to pay cash for their supplies and thereby avoid the ruinous "time price" in goods.

We have also the two best carriage factories in the state, viz : Jackson G. Smith and Sum-

Total amount $2,045
This is a fair index of what Barnesville is.
She is not standing idly by crying lustily for northern capitalists to come and invest their money with her; but is going steadily ahead and booming herself. There are no lots in Barnesville selling at $100 per front foot, but there is a least the standard of the selling at $100 per front foot, but there is plenty of room for men who want to invest and work steadily upwards with the town, who want to advance both themselves and the community. We want no speculators.

THROWN TO THE GROUND. The Succession of Accidents Experienced by a Gwinnett Farmer.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., April 11.—[Special.]— John Brounlee, wagoner for Brounlee & B.o., of Tripp, who was ran upon by a freight train,
while crossing the Georgia railroad some time ago, and carried three hundred yards on the ago, and carried three hundred yards on the cow catcher, happened to a more serious accident Saturday, while returning home with a load of meat and one barrel of sugar. The barrel, on which he was sitting, it being on its end, while going down hill, lost its base, and threw Brounlee on his head on the ground, the barrel, weighing 350 pounds, falling on him. His tram went on, leaving Brounlee and the sugar on the ground. Some one passing in an sugar on the ground. Some one passing in an hour afterwards found him, and brought him back to town and had him patched up. His head was badly cut, one rib broke, his nose was-split, and lip mashed all out of shape.

WEY THOMASVILLE IS IN FAVOR. $500 An Acre Offered for a Large Tract of Land.

Land.

TAOMASVILLE, Ga., April 11.—[Special.]—
A northern capitalist the other day offered $20 000 cash for farty acres of land just east of this city. The offer was refused. The property is unimproved and the location not more desirable than many others near Thomasville. Five hundred dollars an acre is not a small sum to be offered for suburban property near Thomasville or any other city, and yet it is sum to be onered for suburban preperty near Thomasville or any other city, and yet it is true that such an offer has been made to Mr. Alexander Smith for forty acres beyond Yan-kee Paradise and was refused by Mr. Smith because he can get more. This proves beyond question the value and importance placed upon real estate in and around Thomasville. A few reflections as to the cause of this will not be amirs. The experience of the past two winters has proven this to be the most popular winter recent in the south. Is this popularity deserved? Let us see.

During the month of January the mercury did not fall below 25° above zero, and did not go this low but twice, the average temperature for that month at 6 o'clock a. m, being about

From the first of February till now the thermometer has not registered below 40° above zero, and only on three occasions has it been this low. The weather has been very open, not more than ten days rain perhaps this year. This is remarkable, in view of the fact that the present winter, in most places north and suth, has been noted for its severity. Even now snow and sleet still prevail in the north, and not more than two weeks ago, a blizzard struck upper Georgia, and mercury danced around 20°, with snow and ice in abundance. What other place can show such a record as Thomasville. It is not wonderful that thousands of people are anxious to secure a home in such a favored locality. There is no denying that Thomasville is on a boom which is likely to add very much to her importance as a commercial center for southwest Georgia. Georgia can already point with pride to the little sanitarium nestled in the bosom of her piney woods and say that no other state in the union can claim within its borders a city whose climate is at once so delightful and benoficial as that of our own Thomasville.

RAILROAD TALK IN COLUMBUS. Several New Schemes Under Considera-

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 11.—[Special.]—Columbus is absorbed in new railroad projects. It is given out, on good authority, that the extension of the Mobile and Girard railroad to Pollard, Ala., is a settled fact.

The corps which have been engaged in surveying the proposed extension of the Columbus and Rome railroad have been called in, and will be put to work at once surveying the and will be put to work at once surveying the route from Troy to Pollard.

The Mobile and Girard has found this extension necessary in view of the projected line from Montgomery to Chattahoochee, Fla.

It is rumored here in railroad circles that the Central has bought the Brunswick and Western. THE FUNERAL OF ALBERT MIX, THE OLD SHOEMERCHANT.

A Large Number of Life Long Friends Follow His emains to the Grave-A Sudden Marriage-The Macon Barbers-Peppermint Spring -Other News From Macon.

MACON, Ga., April 11.-[Special.]-This morning a large concourse of the friends of Albert Mix, the old shoe merchant, assembled at Christ church to witness the beautiful ceremonies in honor of the good old man. Rev. J. R. Winchester officiated, and the performance was most impressive. The service was, as is always the case at this church, of the most appropriate sort, and the flower-lader easket was borne by the following gentlemen, life-long friends of the deceased: Captain John G. Deitz, J. R. Baker, C. E. Campbell, A. G. Watts, H. G. Cutter and G. C. Connor,

The Knights Templar, of which he was an honored member, and the Floyd Rifles, of which company his name appears on the char-ter, were out in uniform and joined the long procession which moved along Walnut street under the arching elm branches, flecked with green, to the place of interment in Rose Hill cemetery. So passed from among her citizens one of Macon's landmarks—a man who was ever foremost in bearing his share of the burdens of the body politic, and whose public patriotism was only equaled by the many virtues that beautified his private life.

PEPPERMINT SPRING.

A Historie Place Put on the Market. MACON, Ga., April 11.—[Special.]—Ben L. Jones, of East Macon, is negotiating for the sale of four scres of East Macon land, lying a sale of four scree of East Macon land, lying a couple of blocks east of the site of old Fort Hawkins. On this lot is the celebrated Peppermint springs, where the garrison of that famous fertalice used to get their drinking water. The spring takes its peculiar name from the quantity of wild peppermint that grew in the valley near the spring. There is a good deal of this famourite, both growing in a good deal of this favorite herb growing in the neighborhood yet.

Formerly the festive gentlemen of East Macon used to adjourn to this old spring, which is beautifully scluded in a thicket of pines that covers the surrounding slopes, with a big black bottle and a gourd of brown sugar, and mix mint juleps until their heels flow up with ecstacy. On such occa-tions clay piper with long reed stems were filled and smoked, and be-tween puffs those grand and egregiously impossible yarns that are now considered as au-themic traditions, were evolved, and the lan-emid hours crept lazily by while the old boys enjoyed themselves.

It used to be a favorite gathering place for tors on Sundays, who met there to organize raids on their neighbors' melon putches, and to chase the frisky horse over the ridges toward the cemetery. It was here Honry Jones took his first chew of tobacco, and John Y. Lowe learned to skin the cat on a stooping persimmen tree. It was formerly a part of the princely Woolfolk estate, and its history would fill a volume.

THE MACON BARBERS.

The Sunday Ten O'clock Ordinance to Be Enforced.

MACON, Ga., April 11.—[Special.]—The li-ceuse ordinance requires barbers in Macon to close their shops after ten o'clock Sundays, the only exception being that when a barber begins shaving, shampooing or pompadoring a Sunday customer, he is allowed to complete the job if the hour of closing arrive before he has completed it.

of closing arrive before he has completed it. Several efforts have been made to close the shops altogether on Sandays, but so far they have failed.

Yesterday an Italian, who had set up in business jat the old Savage stand, on Mulberry street, was caught doing work after ten, and he was summoned up today. Chief Wiley has instructed the police to keep an eye on the butchers Sundays to see that they do not yields the ordinance, and that they do not violate the ordinance, and has told the officers that he will hold them responsible for the rigid enforcement of the ordinance.

According to the Fort Gaines Advertiser, caterpillars are webbing up in myriads all through that section. A new postoffice near Orebank, Bartow county, has been named for Mr. Henry W. Grady, of The Constitution.

A negro brought a trout into Valdosta from Indian pond several days ago which weighed twelve pounds and eight ounces. As an evidence of the extent of the banking capital of Americus, it is stated that within the past ten days one bank lent one firm $120,000 to carry out a big deal. The deal was made and the money is back in the bank.

Nearly a year ago, Hugh Irwin, a colored man, of Henry county, Ala, was shot in his right leg, near the knee, by some one who in-tended to kill him. The ball from a thirty-two calibre pistol, could not be found, and Hugh has hobbled around, when not confined to his bed, ever since, suffering tortures, until a few days ago, when the ball dropped out of the suppurating wound.

Says the Athens Banner: A gentleman from Ninety-Six, near Greenwood, and not far from the line of the G., C. & N. road, tells us that the British fort is as well preserved as if it was thrown up last year, while the tunnel dug under the hill on which it stands, by the American troops, is open—not caved the slightest. In fact, you can see the point of the picks and the names of the soldiers carved in hard clay on its sides.

Albany News: Hon. P. W. Jones, the first bale man of Georgia, was in the city on yes-terday, and he reports his cotton crop more advanced this season than he ever had it. He says that his 150 acres of cotton, planted in February, is now six inches high. To inquiries as to the effect of the cold he said that while there had been more cold weather in March this year than for many years previous, yet the oction had withstood it remarkably well, and that his stand was almost perfect. Mr. Jones thinks that he will have a bale in market earlier this season than he ever has

We learned a few days ago, says the Dahlonega Signal, that there have been two Mormon prissionaries in this county over a year, who bave been trying to preach their infamous dectrines to the people. They have been spenging around on those who would allow them all this time. They have not had charm and nice words enough about them to get anybedy to join them, and from what we learn will not get anybody, but still lounge around, doing nothing, but presching the debasing doing nothing but preaching the debasing doctrines which they pretend to believe in. These men should be tarred and feathered and run out of the county.

The Thomasville Times gives the following account of the killingfof Jesse Applewhite: On the first instant a sad tragedy was enacted near the Florida line, in which Thomas county lost an industrious, energetic farmer and a good and esteemed citizen, Mr. Jesse Applewhite. and esteemed citizen, Mr. Jesse Applewante, The following particulars in reference to the unfortunate occurrence were furnished us by a gentlemen living in the vacinity and familiar with the facts. Wily King, colored, stole some chickens from Mr. T. J. Hutto, who lives just across the Florida line. Mr. Jesse Applewhite attempted to arrest King when the latter presented his cause of warrest Mr. Appleshits not sented his gun and warned Mr. Applewhite not to go on him as he would shoot. Mr. A., know-ing King to he a bed man and seeing his dan-ger, fired on him, the load taking effect in the knees, whereupon King fired upon Mr. A., the load entering the temple and blowing his brains out. Mr. A. died almost instantly. King lived three or four hours, dying from loss of blood from severed arteries and nervous shock. After Applewhite fell from his horse King secured both guns and staggered off 200 or 250 yards before he fell.

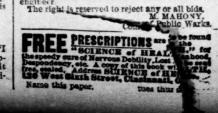

Rome Bulletin: In our city there lives a re markable woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Bowen, familiarly known as "grandma Bowen," a native Virginian, a typical southern lady of the old school. Her early life was speut in the aristo-cratic cities of Richmond and Fredricksburg. Reared amid the luxury of Virgina in its ante-bellum days, she bears the stamp of gentle blord; the advantage of culture. She has ever been a woman of system; now a part of each day is given to God, and nothing is permitted to interfere with these secred hours. We made her a little call the other day and found her cheerful and bright. As she recalled happy reminiscenses of youthful days we almost for got the faded lines of her face and seemed to see her in the strength of young life. She is a mistress of conversation, adap-ing herself easily to child or learned adult. In 1824 she, with other Virginia ladies, were present at a banquet teudered LaFayette, in bis visit to the United States. Her face flushbis visit to the United States. Her face flushed with pardonable pride as she spoke of having sat at table with the nobility. She has entertained under her roof, in the old Virginia heme, two presidents. President Taylor dined with her in February previous to his death in 1850, as d during Fillmore's presidency he was a guest in her hospitable home. This gifted woman, whose early days were spent in the meet cultured society of our republic, has "grown old beautifully," though her present days are spent in gentleness and simplicity. We are grateful to the regard of such dear old friends as "grandma Bowen." Though eightytwo years old, she has not cultived her usefulness, when, by her earliest Christian example, she instructs the younger generations in the she instructs the younger generations in the lessons of life.

Georgia and the Interstate Law. A western exchange, alluding to some of the criticisms of THE CONSTITUTION on the interstate commerce law, remarks with something of a flourish that Atlanta was in favor of the law and was among the first commercial communities to send forward a petition in behalf of the bill.

This statement is only partly true. Atlanta merchants were in favor of the Reagan bill, but they never did send forward a petition in favor of the law as it stands. And they would not favor the law today, for they see very clearly that, instead of relieving them of the results of discrimination, it makes them the victims of even a worse

The great trouble is that the law, as it stands, will not permit competition. Under the pooling system the practical destruction of competition was bad enough, but under this law competition is destroyed by statute. The pool was a flexible affair, adjusting itself fully and freely to the demands of the trade, to the complications of commerce and to the necessities and interests of busines ible, provided it be put in operation. It is a law that may fit the north and east, but its effects will be very seriously felt in the south whenever its provisions are carried out.

This point is very clearly and concisely set forth in the petition which General E. P. Alexander, the president of the Central railroad, has sent to the interstate commission In this petition General Alexander asks that the roads he represents may be allowed to accept or participate in lower rates upon interstate traffic to and from certain junction and competitive points from either eastern or western cities than they accept upon traffic between the same cities and local sta tions short of the points mentioned. These points are Chattanooga, Rome, Dalton, Anniston, Birmingham, Atlanta, Macon, Columbus, Albany, Fort Gaines, Eufaula, Augusta, Columbia, Athens, Gainesville, Greenwood, Laurens, Greenville, Anderson and Spartanburg. General Alexander says:

This petition is preferred more in the interests of the cities and towns mentioned than of the railroad lines which serve them.

Until the passage of the interstate commerce act there was no restraint upon free competition among carriess. No penalty was attached to it and it became a universal custom wherever two lines came into contact. This gave advantage to such came into contact. This gave advantage to such points not possessed by others, and business centered at them. Manufactures sprang up and property enhanced in value around them. Places which were non-competitive taxed themselves and raised money by various devices to secure competing lines, and there is scarcely one of the towns or cities named in the above list which has not by making or private subscription of its efficient named. public or private subscription of its citizens paid for the advantages of competition which it now enjoys. Many of them have perhaps paid much more than the advantages were worth.

The act above referred to has now attached The act above referred to has now attached severe penalties to competition. It seems, at first sight, not a very serious thing to do, but I think, upon examination and reflection, it will appear to have very far reaching effects. The values of property over the whole southern territory have crystallized under conditions which will be materially charged if penalties are to be attached to competition. The situation will not be unlike what would result in a inaunfacturing district which had grown up for forty years under a protective had grown up for forty years under a protective tarif, if the tariff were suddenly removed. Values would be all unsettled and would have to readjust themselves to the altered conditions. This is al-themselves to the altered conditions. This is always a slow process, and one entailing great hardships upon individuals.

My limits do not permit me to elaborate, but I think it must be clear to any reflecting individual that if the competing rates under which, for example, the city of Atlanta has grown up and become a place of large commercial and manufacturing enterprise, are withdrawn, there must be very many cases of individual loss and distress to result.

The railroads can indeed easily strike an average

The railroads can indeed easily strike an average of their present rates and get from their whole bushness about what they do at present. But it seems to me doubtful if, even after all, the existence of come competitive centers could be avoided. I have above the natural advantages possessed by the ports and how they spread back into the integer by river and rail lines. It is under all of these respectives, conditions that the competitive would be approximated to the second time. complex conditions that the competitive points in the state of Georgia freights are fixed entirely by a state commission, which has never been ac-cused of partiality to the railroad interests. This cused of partiality to the railroad interests. This commission, however, has fully indorsed the principle that at competitive points railroads should be permitted to compete freely, and without attaching to such competition the penalty of reducing their rates at other points. For years every railroad in Georgia has been permitted by its railroad comission to accept less rates for the longer haul, wherever competition made it necessary. wherever competition made it necessary.

I therefore trust, that the commission will ac-which your honorable body is constituted to limi and diminish the operation of competition between transportation lines. But it seems to me that the exercise of the discretion vested in you is nec sary in the cases above mentioned to prevent the fourth section from having that effect.

This is clearly and forcibly put, and it shows just how the interstate law with its crude, experimental provisions will injure not only individuals, but communities.

A Crank of Cranks.

Much learning will make a man mad and so will continuous thinking, or devotion to a single idea to the exclusion of everything else. In a recent number of Hall's Journal of Health we find the following:

Sir Henry Thompson, the great English teetotal-er physician, who refuses to treat any one in ill-ness who drinks alcoholic beverages, says, never-theless, that the only water which is perfectly safe to drink, unless it has been boiled or filtered, i natural mineral water. In the shape of a wrl gling worm, invisible to the eye, even when held to the light, and only to be detected by the micro-scope, a water-drinker may have given more permanent lodging to a snake than ever the hospitable whale gave to Jonah. But an animalcule will grow and thrive on the inside of the indiscrimate water-drinker who has awallowed it until feeds upon his vitals and exhausts his health and strength. The victim wonders why he or she feels so much discomfort in the stomach, loses all appe-tite for food or else grows ravenous, feels nervous, depressed, and incapable of active duty. The un known and unsuspected reptile stowaway, swal lowed weeks or months before, in a glass of impure ous cases on record of inanition, or suspension of life, and apparent death from this cause alone ust be incapable of weighing eviden If Sir Henry Thompson and other health cranks tell the truth, life is not worth living. The great mass of mankind cannot be expected to spend their time fooling around after mineral water, and boiling and filtering generally.

It would seem to be a piece of sheer ma lignity on the part of the eminent British doctor, after persuading millions of people to do without their beer, to then turn about and frighten the water-drinkers with a lot of outrageous snake stories.

The explanation of it all was suggested in our opening paragraph. Our prominent health apostles are simply a pack of ridiculous cranks, and it is a hard matter to find one of them with anything like a working stomach or a materialized backbone.

Of course it is important that we should drink good water, but with a little common sense Sir Henry Thompson's snakes may be avoided. Even indiscriminate water-drink ing does not result in a very high death rate. There is nothing in the whole business to justify alarm.

The Pan Handle Pirates

Our dispatches this morning tell a story that reads like a romance.

It appears that for two or three years past the Pan Handle railroad has been systematically robbed, all along the line from Pittsburg to Columbus. The robbers, with the exception of a few, were not outsiders. They were the trusted employes of the road, freightmen, firemen, engineers, brakemen and conductors.

After robbing the freight cars for years, the thieves have at last been uncovered, and yesterday they were arrested by scores and perhaps hundreds.

The whole affair is calculated to surprise and shock the public. Railroad employes as a rule are men of sound integrity and reliability. To find the Pan Handle men robbing their employers by wholesale is almost too startling for belief.

But there is one very suggestive feature sticking out of the case. It is the fact that so many employes of a large corporation succeeded for so long a time in maintaining a combination for an unlawful purpose. This gang of railroad pirates took in recruits by hundreds. They found it safe to commit their dangerous secrets to the keeping of a large number of men. The only mistake they made was in not adding a few of the higher officials of the road and the sheriffs along the line to their organization. With these gentlemen as honorary members, the society would have defied detection and punishment.

If this combination, imperfect as it was, succeeded in accomplishing so much, it must follow that with better methods a judiciously regulated association of similar combinations, embracing all the employed classes, would soon scoop their employers, and own the entire wealth of the country. Some such programme may suggest itself to the aspiring socialists and communists of our day. If they think the project feasible let them try it. They will find that the prison and the gallows are still the most positive elements of our civilization.

The Cotton Movement

In its weekly review of the movement of the cotton crop, the New York Financial Chronicle says that for the week ending last Friday the total receipts have reached 29,308 bales, against 34,115 bales last week, 46,298 bales the previous week and 57,716 bales three weeks since; making the total receipts siace the 1st of September, 1886, 5,070,191 bales, against 4,891,989 bales for the same period of 1885 86, showing an increase since September 1, 1886, of 178,202

The exports for the same time reach total of 49,964 bales, of which 27,986 were to Great Britain, 405 to France and 12,573 to the rest of the continent. The total sales for forward delivery for the week are 480, 400 bales. For immediate delivery the total sales foot up 961 bales. The imports into continental ports have been, for the same period, 64,000 bales.

There was an increase in the cotton i sight Friday night of 10,106 bales as compared with the same date of 1886, an increase of 45,474 bales as compared with the corresponding date of 1885 and a decrease of 225,009 bales as compared with 1884.

The old interior stocks have decrea during the week 10,578 bales and were, Friday night, 184,554 bales less than at the same period last year. The receipts at the same towns have been 2,136 bales less than the same week last year, and since Septem ber 1 the receipts at all the towns are 68,327 bales more than for the same time in 1885-86. The total receipts from the plantation since September 1, 1886, are 5,154,351 bales; in 1885-86 were 5,195,883 bales; in 1884-85 were 4,712,786 bales. Although the receipts at the outports the past week were 29,308 bales, the actual movement from plantations was only 18,360 bales, the balance being taken from the stocks at the interior towns. Last year the receipts from the plantations for the same week were 25, 473 bales and for 1885 they were 5,716 bales.

aw is a fight between the east and the south. WE perceive from the newspapers that our Uncle Jonathan Norcross is reviling us because of our objections to the interstate commerce law. This doesn't help the case at all. As a matter of fact the law wipes out all competition, and the salvation of the commercia south is to have its operations suspended until the commission can adjust its provisions.

OUR GREAT CAPTAIN.

Reminiscences of General Lee from General Long's Book.

From the New York Sun. We are told that only twice during the plographer's prolonged intimacy with Lee was the atter seen to lose his temper, and that one of these lapses from self-control occurred at Sharps "Lee." it seems, "was riding along a little was surreptitiously conveying to his quarters. Positive orders having been given against pillage of every kind in Maryland, this flagrant disregard of his commands threw the general into a hot passion. Though usually greatly disinclined to capital punishment, he determined to make an example of issiment, he determined to make an example of this skulking pilferer, and ordered the man to be arrested and taken back to Jackson, with directions to have him shot." The puritan general, to whom Scriptural precedents were quite as familiar as they had been to Cromwell's officers, "could not quite see the utility of the culprit's execution, when men were already scarce, and is truck him that it would answer the scarce, and it struck him that it would answer;th purpose quite as well to put the fellow in the front ranks of the army at the most threatened point." He accordingly treated him as David is re-ported to have served the husband of Bathsheba, "placing him where his chance of being shot wa excellent. The fellow, though fond of clandestin pork, was not wanting in courage, and behave gallantly. He redeemed his credit by his bravery coming through the heat of the fight unscath and thus, though he lost his pig, he may be said to have saved his bacon."

The author appropriately concludes the chapter assigned to Gettysburg, where the star of the con-federacy's fortunes passed into irreparable eclipse, with the following anecdote, which rests only on newspaper authority, but which General Long deems worthy of belief and reproduction, because ti is so strangly consonant with his own observa-tions of Lee's large-minded and invariably considerate attitude toward union men. The story was originally told by a "Grand Army" man, who had been viewing the panorama of the battle of Get tysburg, and who said: "I was in the battle o settysburg myself, and an incident occurred the which largely changed my views of the souther people. I had been a most bitter anti-south man, and fought and cursed the confed-erates desperately. I could see nothing good in any of them. The last day of the fight I was badly wounded; a ball shattere my left leg. I lay on the ground not far from Cemetery Ridge, and as General Lee ordered his retreat, he and his officers rode near me. As they came along I recognized him, and, though faint from exposure and loss of blood, I raised up my hands, looked Lee in the face, and sh as I could. 'Hurrah for the union!' The general heard me, looked, stopped his horse, dismounted, and came toward me. I confess that I at first thought he meant to kill me. But as he came up he looked down at me with such a sad express upon his face that all fear left me, and I wondered what he was about. He extended his hand to me, and grasping mine firmly and looking right into my eyes, said: 'My son, I hope that you will soon be well.' If I live a thousand years I shall never forget the look upon Lee's face. There he was, do-feated, retiring from a field that had cost him and his cause almost their last hope, yet he stopped to say such words as those to a wounded soldier of the enemy who had taunted him as he passed by! As soon as the general had left me I cried myself to sleep there upon the bloody ground."

SOME QUICK WORDS

At a Business Meeting of the Members of Plymouth Church. From the Brooklyn Eagle.

An adjourned business meeting of the mem-bers of Plymouth church was held last evening in the lecture room of the church at the close of the prayermeeting. Mr. C. S. Van Waggoner was moderator. The committee appointed at the meeting one week ago to nominate a special advisory committee, whose duty it shall be to confer with the warlous church officers regarding any business that may come up—in other words to supplement the regular officers, reported that it had unanimously agreed upon the following names: E. A. Seccomb, Augustus Storrs, S. V. White, A. D. Wheelock, T. J. Tilney, R. W. Raymond, F. C. Manyel

Manyel.

Mr. Talmage moved that the report of the nominating committee be adopted and that the members named be constituted a committee to act for the church. Mr. Raymond moved to amend by adding to the committee Thomas G. Shearman, R.

adding to the committee Thomas G. Shearman, R. W. Ropes, I. A. Stauwood.

Mr. Shearman was on his feet in an instant, his eyes flashing and his voice trembling with but partly concealed emotion. "Mr. Stanhope and Mr. Ropes can speak for themselves," he said, "but as for me I must positively decline to serve. I made up my mind, even before Mr. Reecher's death, for personal reasons, which need not be enlarged upon here, that I would withdraw from active participation in the affairs of Plymouth tive participation in the affairs of Plymouth church And after the imputations cast upon my conduct last Friday night, I cer-tainly will not consent to act on the committee. The things that were said then were ut-tered by a friend, a very dear friend of mine, and they will not result in any rupture of our private relations, but they have driven me to the determination not to be again active in this church. I have stood a good many imputations upon my conduct and character during the last thirty years, but this one is the worst, to charge that I had this special committee all cut and dried."

Mr. Raymond—This is the first time that I ever dreamed that there was any misunderstanding be-tween my dear friend, Mr. Shearman, and myself. If he thinks that I put any imputation upon his actions or motives on last Friday night, he entirely misunderstood me. But I want to say to Thomas G. Shearman right here, in this place, that the church wants him on this committee, and he can't church wants him on this committee, and he can't waive the claim of the church on him on any mere question of delicacy or misunderstanding. The church needs him and it is not right, I say to him in the name of God, for bir, or any other man to put any possible, private feeling in the way of his plain duty to his church and to his Master for one moment. It is wrong for Mr. Stearman to shun his duty in this way. I now urge him by our old triendship to do his duty to Plymouth church at this crisis. If I did say anything that impagned his motives or gave him offense, I will he down any spology that he may desire.

Mr. Shearman—I don't want any spology. I sto M many imputations for Mr. Beecher when he was alive. I bore diagreeable censure on his account. I bore the brunt of some of his indiscretions, for who is there among us who will not say that Mr. Beecher was sometimes indiscreet? I remember that on one occasion my name was substituted for that of Mr. Beecher in a column and a half interview with that continuous in contain and a way. view with that gentleman in a certain newspap because the interview would have been regar m Mr. Beecher. To this da I have never made that circumstance known, greas was the censure flung upon me from certal quarters. To carry burdens for Mr. Be plessure, but Mr. Beecher is dead, and the tim for my carrying these disagreeable burdens ha ceased. It I am to do anything in the future for Plymouth church, the request must come earnestly, honestly and unanimously. I believe that the feeling of the majority of this church toward me is kindly. You know that I have not sought office or power or authority. You have offered me every office within your gift except that of your s felt that I was serving Plymouth churcher a wet blanket. Whenever I have got up t speak in this room, I have not been able to escap the conviction that there were spies within the fal of my voice, here to mistrust and cast doubt upon me. So far as there is any private and persona misunderstanding between Brother Raymond and myself, I am willing to make an end of it right here, but I will not longer bear the den of these unpleasant imputations. I Plymouth church to understand that I want anything. The action I took on last Frida; night was as great a service to this church as I hav could have been taken, and things are now movin smoothly in the desired direction. You may de pend upon it that when I get up, even though i be in an unofficial capacity, I do not speak rashly or without having consulted with brother men bers. If Plymouth church has any confidence i me they can get good work out of me still. In this or in any other church you can not get any body o officers together that will not think it can govern the church without there being any need of con-sulting the congregation. This is merely the official nstinct and tendency.

Mr. Tilney—Eleven years ago, for one year Thomas G. Shearman devoted his days and nights to the devoted service of Plymouth church, and Plymouth church owes a debt of gratitude to Thom as G. Shearman which she can never repay. [Ap plause.] The heart of the church is with him and his name will always be honored whether or no he retains an active participation in her affairs. ask him now, in the name of the church, to go or

Mr. Raymond-I want to know whether Mr. Shearman isn't as willing to serve the Lord and Plymouth church as he was to serve Mr. Beecher? Mr. Talmage, in a few remarks, indicated hi beliefithat Mr. Shearman's indignation was uncalled for by the circumstances of the case

The amendment to add the names of Thomas G Shearman, R. W. Ropes and I. A. Stanwood to the special committee was then put and unanimously dopted. The original motion then prevailed. Mr. Shearman announced that a cablegram had been received from Rev. Joseph Parker, of London stating that he would be willing to come to Brook lyn in June to deliver the memorial address on Mu instructed to cable the noted divine to that effect The meeting then adjourned.

THE BIG BLANKET FISH. A Story Showing How It Overpowers and Kills the Pearl Divers.

From an Interview with a Pearl Diver.

The first time I struck the bottom I couldn't be lieve I was there. It was as clear as air and the fishes swimming around might have been taken for birds. I landed on a kind of sand hill when hey lowered me, and had to walk about fifty fee down into a valley like before I struck the shells. They were all in a bunch, stretched along in a ridge, looking like a black mark against the white bottom. I was dragging the hamper, and when I got alongside I began to toss them in. I reckon I had filled half a dozen or so, when all at once I saw a kind of shadow moving over all. At first I thought it was the schooner, and then, perhaps, some of the other divers coming down, and then to the country of the state of opper cap it would have riz right on end.

There, a-movin' over me, was what I tool be a bird about thirty feet across. It was wheeling round and round, flapping its big wings; just as you've seen buzzards or eagles do. overhead. Down it came, lower and lower, and a crouching as flat as I could get. The nearer i ot the bigger it looked, and as I see it was a-set tiling on me I took the pike I always carried, and as it wheeled around over me I let drive. Hit it? Well, I reckon I did. The next thing I knew I was standing on my head, rolling over and over, then yanked sideways, half drowned, and then I reckon I lost my senses, and when I came to I was lyin' on deck and all hands looking sat ne. You see the critter had given the water suc me. You see the critter had given the water such a swirl that I was knocked end for end, and my pipe and line twisted around and around so that I couldn't breathe, and of course that pulled the line and the men thought. I had jarked it to come up, so they hauled away for all they were worth, and that's what saved my life. What was it? Why, nothin' but one of those seabats—blanket fish the other men called it—and they all said I had a narrow run for it. That was the way achad a narrow run for it. That was the way, accordin' to their say, that the fish goes to work to to get away with a man. They first settle down on you like a blanket, and there you are.

HIS LOST IDENTITY.

Four Months a Wanderer—A Sudden Awak-ening and Terrible Realization. From the New York Herald.

The story in the Herald on Sunday last concerning the wanderings of Ansel Bourne and Dr. Roy while they had temporarily lost their identity was read with great interest in Newark by at least a score of people who are acquainted with the circumstances of a story quite as remarkable.

There lives in Newark a gentleman who ten years ago was a journalist of considerable reputa-tion. Twelve years ago he met with an adventure which he recently related to a Herald reporter. He declined to allow his name to be publish

'For some time," he said, "I had been addicted to the use of interioring liquors, but I ceased drinking entirely. For seven weeks I attended to business, was in excellent spirits and believed that my brain was clear from the evil effects of my former dissipation. One evening I was missing. Not the slightest trace of me could be found.

A STRANGE AMARINAN.

A STRANGE AWAKENING. "One bright, clear morning I came to my senses on West Baltimore street, Baltimore. I was stand-ing on the bridge over Jones's falls. Everything was new and strange. Certainly I was not in New ark, and for a few minutes I thought that I had been dreaming. In my vest pocket I found $2.65 in change, and I were a high silk hat, instead of a derby. Inside the hat was the trade mark of a Philadelphia hat firm, and the chinchilla overcoat I had on bore the name of a Philadelphia tailor. I was puzzled, and could not remember any place it Philadelphia similar to the one in which I found myself. A tall, portly gentleman came street and I made bold to address him. 'Will you tell me, sir, where I am?'

'Well,' the gentleman replied, 'you are or Jones's bridge. Are you lost?"
"I am,' I stammered, 'and I would like to know where I am, and how long I have been away from

"'You are in Baltimore,' answered the gentle man, who was General Latrobe, afterward mayor of the city. 'Do you live here?'

"As best I could at the time I told the general about my life in Newark. He took me to the Car-rollton house and advised me to sleep a few hours. In the afternoon I arose greatly refreshed and with a clear brain. In the inner pocket of my vest l found $37 in bills and an entry in a memorandum book which showed that I had been in Newark just four months, three weeks and one day prior to that date. How I reached Baltimore, got the new clothes at the $37 was a mystery to me. The next a southern train and to watch for me in Baltimore.

UNCONSCIOUS WORK. been employed by a Baltimore newspaper to work up an important case in Norfolk. I had successfully performed my duties and had received $85 for my week's work. On the streets I was greeted by people whom I did not know, and I could not re-member that I had ever met them. I appeared to be moving as if in a dream, when all at once fears of permanent insanity dawned upon me. I went to Washington, thinking that I would like to see the government buildings before I returned to Newark There I was also surprised by people on the stree who sppeared to know me, but whom I had never met. Late in the afternoon upon the day of my ar-rival in Washington I met a lady who spoke to me kindly and asked me how I had been. With much embarrassment I asked her how she knew me, and what I had been during her acquaintance. At first she thought that I had been drinking and then that I was crazy. Finally I learned from her that I had been working in Washington for several weeks. I was considered bright but erratic, and when I suddenly disappeared nobody wondered. "It was not until then that the truth flashed-upor me. I had lost my identity. The agony I suffered was terrible. I felt that I was surely going Within an hour I started for Newark, but reached Philadelphia I thought of my hat and overcoat and concluded to stop off a few hours and try to unravel the mystery of the past four

"On my way down Chestnut street men bowed or shook hands with me. After I had gone several blocks I met Catheart Taylor, a well known newspaper man. He told me that early in the previous November, I had obtained a position on a Philadelphia newspaper, and had made money. I worked night and day, seldom spoke to any one, and lived by myself. People thought me eccentric, but inoffensive. Suddenly I disappeared, and left my satchel in the house in which I was boarding. That is all I ever know of my strange ad-drop last fall, and cut his throat while weighing cotton for him, will likely be arraigned for trial sometime this week. The crime was by far the blackest in the history of the county, and the readers of THE CONSTITUTION are already familiar with the circumstances. One of the negroes was soon afterwards apprehended and burned. Hart is still confined in Montgomery for safe keeping, and it is thought by many shat unless strongly guarded he will be lyn ched before his trial can be had. The people of the community are still determined, and strong efforts will be necessary to avoid the lynching.

THE STATE CONVENTION HELD IN

Several Shippers Ask to be Admitted, Whereupon
They are Cross-Questioned by the Manufacturers-The Constitution Indorsed-A Firm
Feeling Pervades the Trade.

JESUP, Ga., April 11. - [Special.] -- The conven-JESUP, Ga., April 1. Lope tion of naval stores manufacturers of Georgia held at this place today, was more satisfactory in its results than the most sanguine members of the its results than the most sanguing memoers of the Protective association had heped for. Twenty-six producers were present representing forty-four stills. Taking into consideration the stills owned by members of the association not present at the convention, it may be said that about seventy stills had representati ing 40,000 barrels of spirits and 160,000 barrels of rosin, of an aggregate value of $1,200,000.

The convention assembled at twelve o'clock moon, and was called to order by President L. Johnson. Application The convention assembled at twelve o'clock noon, and was called to order by President L. Johnson. Application for admission to the floor was made by Mears. Howard Page, of Louisville, Kentucky, representing the Standard Oil company; J. A. G. Carson, of Savannah, representing J. P. Williams & Co., a leading naval stores commission house of that city; C. D. Russell, representing the inspectors of Savannah, and J. B. Chestnutt, of Chestnutt & O'Neill, naval stores factors of Savannah. Measrs. J. P. Williams & Co., have been acting in opposition to the movement of the producers, while Chestnutt and O'Neill had some time ago announced themselves as favoring the association. After discussion it was decided to admit these gentlement to the convention, and allow them to make any statement they might desire during the afternoon session. The convention tlemen to the convention, and allow them to make any statement they might desire during the afternoon session. The convention then adjourned for dinner at two o'clook.

The manufacturers were called to order again by President Johnson, and Vice-President Brantly briefly stated the object of the meeting. He said the convention had been called by the association for the purpose of discussing several matters of vital importance to Georgia naval stores producers. Several abuses had crept into the business, perhaps the greatest of which was the horning or changing the grades of rosin at the ports after the rosin had left the manufacturers' hands, and the foisting of large quantities of rosin on distant consumers at other than the actual grade by changing the grade marks on the barrels. Another great evil was the present loose asstem of inspection at the tities of roein on distant consumers at other than the actual grade by changing the grade marks on the barrels. Another great evil was the present loose system of inspection at the ports. Again, the refusal of certain factors in spirits turpentine. The names of the pure classes was seriously complained of and it was shown that such failure on their part to so state the pure classes had laid the failures open to suspicion of taking stuff to account when the market was favorable. Another grievance stated was the charging of a profit on the ding their account sales.

At the conclusion of Mr. Brantley's remarks, Carson addressed the convention some length, on behalf of firm, and on concluding invited his firm, and on concluding invited the association to ask him any question they might prefer.

Vice-President Brantley proceeded to catachise Mr. Carson in the most searching manner, extorting from him an admission that there were factors who were guilty of everything the producers had charged them with, but he denied that his firm was quilty of some of the charges and delivery and the charges and delivery was quilty of some of the charges and delivery was called th firm was guilty of some of the charges and admitting that others were true. Mr. Carson's statement, when cross examined by Mr. Braatlev, that the failure of factors to give the names of parties to whom they sell the products of their customers, was an incentive to dishonesty, was considered by the convention extremely suggestive.

At the conclusion of Mr. Carson's testimony Mr. Howard Page made a short statement in behalf of the Standardfoll company and urged the advantages to producers of selling their spirits of turpentine direct to his company, claiming that they could save the producer from fity cents to one dollar per barrel, and this was admitted by Mr. Carson.

Mr. Chestnutt then made a statement to the convention and showed that his firm was willing to conform to the views of the association in handling naval stores for producers, and asked for a share of the busiproducers, and asked for a shall of the factors, and Mr. Russell's on the part of the inspectors, was considered by the convention very damaging to the present system of doing business, and showed clearly the great importance of early legislative action. After a general discussion of the points at issue by the entire convention, which was notably participated in by Hon. William Letford, of Bryan; Senator

L. Hand, of Pelham; Townsend, of Macon: Major E. E. C. B. Townsend, of Macon; Major E. E. Mims, of Baxter, Jos. H. Baker, of Alapaha, and Hoz. L. Johnson, of Graham, Vice President Brantley's views were adopted as the sense of the convention, and a committee of seven representative producers was appointed by the chair, whose duty it will be to appear before the Georgia legislature at its coming session in July, and endeavor to secure the passage of such laws as will effect tally stop some of the nefsrious practice which had been shown to exist in the naval stores business, and secure

THE CONDUCT OF THE SAVANNAH NEWS.
Some days ago the Savannah News published a most scurrilous article, signed "Novus Homo," attacking the naval stores men. Mr. C. B. Townsend says:

"My reply was handed in to the Morning News late last Sunday night. I left Savannah next day, and expecte it to have seen my article in Tuesday's issue, but was disappointed. On Wednesday, also, it failed to appear. Then I sent the following dispatch:

Colonel J. H. Estill, Savannah, Ga: Do you reituse publishing my reply to Novus Homo? Answer, To which Mr. Estill replied:

"No, if you pay for it"

Now, I would not have objected to paying for the insertion of the article, but I had been informed—on what I considered good authority—that the "Novus Homo" communication had not been charged for. Therefore I considered Colonel Estill's proposition an unfair one, and unjust to myself. I simply desired to be placed on an equal footing with "Novus Homo." I so cordingly sent the following dispatch:

Colonel J. H. Estill: Telegram received. Before taking action—was Novus Homo's article paid for or was it merted free? Answer."

The reply sent by the distinguished proprietor and presiding genius of the Morning Names as follows:

CHICAGO, April 11.-The strike of journey-CHICAGO, April 11.—The strike of journeyset tailors was still in force to-day, with no saterial charge in the situation. No new ims have become involved, and those firms whese men quit are engaged in an effort to fill their places with new men.
The strike of eight thousand union carpanin trill in progress. The Master Carpan-these men quit are engaged in an effort to fill their places with new men.

The strike of eight thousand union carponus' association is inciting new members, and its members declare that they will not accede the carpenters' demands. This afternoon, therever, two hundred bosses met, and after dearing that they had no sympathy with the laster Carpenters' association, appointed a semittee to confer with a like body from the expensers' council and arrange terms upon which the men should return to work.

The third preliminary meeting looking to-must the formation and consolidation of the halding trade council was held yesterday throon. There were present representatives has the stone cutters, carpenters, painters, laborers, gas fitters, galvanized iron and snice men, stair builders and elaters' unions. A constitution was adopted and a permanent explication will be effected next Sunday. An attempt will be made to bring in the brick-layers and plumbers' unions, as well as the minor ones. The council will represent from 20,000 to 30,000 men, and a general strike will be ordered in every instance where a strike in a single shop cannot be won without the single shop cannot be won without doing so. It is highly probable that the new cancil will take a hand in the carpenters' strike in case it is not soon ended. Members efthe council say the strike of carpenters will at he last one of any of the Chicago building indes. They will get what they ask for witheat resorting to a strike. The constitution alopted yesterday is like the one adopted by a similar council in New York.

The name will be the Amalgamated Building Indee Council of Cook county. Among other writers in the constitution are the following:

All trade and labor societies represented in this round, when desirous of making a demand for either an advance in wages or an abridgement of hours of labor, shall, through their delegates, report the same to this council prior to a demand bering the council of the online of the sund of the union represented, a general site mmbers who have struck and are refused mployment on that job that was struck."

After consultation with the strikers and the mentive committee, an organization was funed to be known as the Independent hater Carpenters' association. The terms of the strikers were at once acceded to on condition that the strike be declared off se far as subjected the new association of semiployers. members of the new association of employers memoraned. This was agreed to by the mikers, and it is expected that about one-ighth of the men will thus resume work imight of the men will thus resume work immediately on the eight-hour plan at thirtyfre cents an hour, disputes to be settled not letween employer and employe, but by arbimicin between the carpenters' and masters' succiations. The result marks an important divergence from the programme declared by arpenters in the beginning of the strike.
They then announced that no carpenters would hallowed to return to work until the conmeters gave in or the strike, as a whole, was telared a failure.

in the Presence of Ladies.

"Well, here is rather a funny case—one that is not dry, at least—but, still, I can't say that the prohibitionists ought to kick about it," said Stationhouse Keeper Wright about 1 o'clock this morning, as he was making out his copies for police court this morning.

The case was a watery one, anyhow.

A gentleman living on Whitehall street near Cooper, opened his water hose yesterday afternoon and began laying the dust in the street in front of his residence. In throwing the water into the street, the gontleman of course, dampened the sidewalk. After laying the dust in the street, the gentlemsn began sprinkling his yard. While he was throwing the water over his lawn a negrowoman passed along the sidewalk and stopping near the gentlemen, called out:

His silence made the woman quite angry, and she began abusing him at a terrific rate, using very offensive language. Finally the gentleman told the woman to move on

It quickly went through her clothing, and with a yell she darted off in a full run. Later the woman, who gave her name as Mary White, reported the matter to Call Officer Green, who went out and give it a careful investigation. The investigation resulted in cases against both parties, and this morning they will be arraigned in police court to answer the charge of disorderly conduct.

Judge Anderson will ring up the curtain and introduce the star to the police court audience through Charley Johnson, a member of the chain gang. On Saturday last Johnson was arrested by Patrolman Cochran. Johnson's arrest was due to a report which reached the patrolman that he was selling liquor from a bottle on the street. When Johnson was arrested he was quite drunk, and at police headquarters two cases were booked lice headquarters two cases were booked against him. The first case charged Johnson with being drunk on the street, and the second with violating the prohibition laws. When with violating the prohibition laws. When Johnson was arraigned in police court yesterday morning Patrolman Cochran failed to show that he had been selling liquor and the prohibition case was dismissed. The patrolman, however, showed conclusively that Johnson had been very drunk and that he drank from a bottle on the street. The evidence satisfied Judge Anderson twenty-five dollars worth, but before the fine was imposed Johnson informed the court that he was willing to tell where he purchased his liquor. Judge Anderson manifested a desire to know the ins and outs of liquor selling places, and Johnson and outs of liquor selling places, and Johnson

TROY, N. Y., April 11.—There were two terrific explosions at the nitro-glycerine works at Plattsburg yesterday afternoon. The first occurred at 2:15 o'clock and the second seven minutes later. It is thought that the heat of the sun raised the temperature of the substance which was mixed outside the factory. The first explosion scattered fire in the store and caused a second one of 600 pounds of nitro-glycerine. Nothing was left of the large brick building used as a factory but an immense hole in the ground. Windows were broken in the building in Plattsburg and the shock was felt in Burlington, Vt. Had the explosion occurred four minutes later there would have been a terrible loss of life, as hundreds of people were on the way to the scene of the accident.

Interesting Meeting at the Churches Yesterday and Last Night.

Yesterday and Last Night.

The meeting yesterday morning at Trinity was conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Lee. He spoke from the words of Isaiah: "My people doth not know. Israel doth not consider." It was a very prefitable service.

Last night Rev. Sam Small preached a remarkably strong sermon on the reasonableness of Christianity. He held the congregation for one bour and a quarter. It was really a masterly discourse and cannot fall to accomplish great good. Mr. Small has been very sick recently, but he was at his best last night. It was with great pleasure that the friends of Mr. Small noted great improvement in him. They saw the secret of the remarkable meetings he has recently held in the vicinity of Boston.

Boston.

The sermon last night would have made the name of any man famous. There was as much between the lines as in the definite statements of the discourse. After the sermon a large number asked an interest in the prayers of the church. The congregation was larger than the capacity of the house. Mr. Small will be with the pastor this morning and tonight. Mr. Maxwell's singing was a very attractive feature of the service last night. He also will be at the service this morning and tonight.

The meetings at this church continue with unabated interest. There was a large attendance at the 4 o'clock meeting yesterday and also at night. There were many conversions yesterday and many who responded to the invitation for an interest in special prayer for the unconverted. Dr. McDonald stated last night that he was rejoiced to know that a large number of the members of his church had covenanted together to give their personal efforts to interesting the unconverted in seeking salvation. The earnest labors of Mr. Smith and Dr. McDonald are being cordially supported by the co-operation of the membership of the church, and it is believed that a great work will be accomplished during this week. SECOND BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Rev. Mr. Smith preached last night, taking as a basis of his sermon the history of Abram and Lot, tracing their lives from the point of their separation, and drawing many beautiful and practical lessons. There were a number of ministers present in the large convergence. congregation. Prayer meeting from 4 to 5 p. m., and preaching by Mr. Smith at 7:45 p. m. daily during this week. The congregation of this church will worship with the Contral Presbyterian church daily from 10:30 to 11:30 a. m. during this week.

The prayer meeting yesterday morning, was anlespecially enjoyable service, in which almost the entire congregation took a personal interest, by either reciting some truth from the Bible, relating some tender experience or praising God for his many mercies and blessings. Last night Dr. Bachman preached a strong practical sermon on "the blood atone, ment." After dismissal of the congregation-special after services were held, during which a number evinced a desire to follow Jesus FIRST PRESBYTERIAN. number evinced a desire to follow Jesus and asked the prayers of the church. These after services are short, but interesting, and all would feel repaid by remaining to take part in them. There will be prayermeeting this morning at 10 o'clock, and preaching tonight a quarter to eight.

preaching tonight a quarter to eight.

CENTRAL CHERSTIAN CHURCH.

The meetings at this church are growing in interest nightly, though there are not the crowds that are to be found at the other churches. Perhaps this may be accounted for in large measure to the simple manner of conducting their services. Mr. Cocke is a preacher of rare power. He is correct, eloquent, and thoroughly versed in the Scriptures. He makes the way plain and clear to all. On Sunday night two young men made the confession and will be baptized. It is earnestly hoped that all good people, who love their Master, will help this struggling band of earnest Christians. Last night the subject was "The Lost Soul," which was handled in a masterly manner, and was listened to with rapt attention.

CENTRAL PRESEVTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. Rosebro preached from the 31st verse, 16th chapter of Luke, a very able sermon, impressing everyone to accept Jesus with the light given us in the gospel, picturing our responsibility in his own unique manner. Tomorrow night will be the last service held by Rev. Mr. Rosebro, and a full attendance is asked for him.

Chief Convolly Issues a Special Order to the Police Force-What it Was. Police Force—What it Was.

Captain Connolly, chief of police, held a short conference with the members of the board of police commissioners last night after the board adjourned. The conference was a private one and when the chief came out of his private office there was gore in his eyes, and a special order to the entire police force. The order was made up of two paragraphs; one of five lines and the other of three lines. They were short, but they were salty. The first paragraph rad:

short, but they were salty. The first para-graph read:

"The members of the force are ordered to strictly enforce the prohibition laws, both state and city, and arrest all persons who violate said laws, and bring them before the proper courts for trial."

That paragraph is only a copy of one that has been published quite frequently before with varying success. with varying success.

The other paragraph was the one that contained the salt. It was the milk in the cocoa-

"Any druggist who sells or furnishes alcohol for other than medicinal, art, scientific or mechanical purposes is a violator of the pro-hibition law." nut. It read:

The special order was published to the morning watch at one o'clock this morning and will be published to the lafternoon watch today at noon today at noon. VELVETIA will remedy defects and impart a

In Fanchon, the Cricket, Last Night at De-Give's Opera House. An exceedingly large audience greeted Miss Cora Van Tassel in the above play at Decire's last night, and, to judge from their demonstratious of night, and, to judge from their demonstratious of approval, a more thoroughly pleased crowd would have been hard to find. Miss Van Tassel is possessed of a sweet face, which never falls to add much to an actress. As an actress she is possessed of much natural talent, highly cultivated, as was evinced in her difficult role of "The Cricket" last night. The play did not lag from beginning to end, and a most pleasant performance was the result. The company throughout is good, and their performances here this week, taking last night's play as a test, will be highly creditable.

soil. The company throughout is good, and their performances here this week, taking last night's play as a test, will be highly creditable.

En route to Atlanta Miss Van Tassel was, unknown to herself, the cynosure of all eyes on the car. At a small town not far from Atlanta a poor blind man and his wife, with a sick child, got on the car. They did not have enough to pay their way, and Miss Van Tassel gave them enough to pay their way and a neat sum beside. Although she did it very quietly, it became known among the passengers who, for the balance of the journey, viewed her with more interest than is generally accorded to strangers.

It is said that Miss Van Tassel received, upon reaching Atlanta, a beautiful bouquet of flowers by express. There is something very peculiar about the flowers this young lady receives. For over eighteen months she has never reached a city where she was billed to play without finding a beautiful basket of flowers awaiting her. They are always shipped by express and without a card or a line to indicate the donor. Miss Van Tassel says she has no idea where they come from or who sends them.

The company will present "The Hidden Hand" says are has no new white they come not a was sends them.

The company will present "The Hidden Hand" tonight, and when the prices charged and the merit of the participants are taken into consider-ation there is hardly a doubt that the opera house will be filled to overflowing.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, April 11.—The stock market was feverish and unsettled today, being never more than firm but most of the time heavy and for short intervals weak. The news of the day was meagre and unimportant. It being a holiday in Loudon there was no arbitrage business, but there was fair trading by speculators at outside points. The great feature of the day was the strength and activity in Reading, over one-third of the entire business being in that stock, and there was considerable excitement accompanying the dealings in it. The circulation of a rumor that at a meeting in Philadelphia today all opposition was to be withdrawn and harmonious action taken by all interests, materially affected the price of stock, which at the opening was 43% and closing at 43%. Jersey Central sympathized closery with the movement in Reading, and although it was only moderately active was decidedly strong. Other coal stocks followed the market. The remainder of the list was lowed the market. The remainder of the list was only moderately active and without a feature of importance, except in a few of the specialties. The opening was generally firm at ½ to ½ per cent above Saturday's closing figures, but these advances were not maintained in the early dealings, and almost the entire market yielded fractional amounts. These losses, however, lwere afterwards generally recovered, but toward noon heaviness are in became expensely accounted to the list was a second become expensely accounted to the list was not provided to the list was no again became apparent, except in Reading and Jersey Central. There was a larger volume of bus-iness in the afternoon, but the general market fluc-tuated within narrow limits and lost small fractions, the close being heavy but active. The total business for the day was 398,000 shares. The closing prices show irregular changes, with a majority of declines in the general list for fractional amounts only, except for Pacific Mail, which lost 11/2 per

THE CHICAGO MARKET,

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution.
CHICAGO, April 11—The feeling was unsettled in wheat today, and prices ruled lower. California advices report rain in that state, but crop news from Ohio, Missouri and Kansas was unfavorable. The ivisible supply reportiwas a great surprise. Operators had calculated upon a fair decrease, and were not prepared for an increase, which aggregated $30,000 bushels. Clearings from the seaboard were light for Saturday, aggregating only 95,000 bushels. The market opened at Saturday a figures, with May at $3%c, but these bearish influences caused a break of $4@1/cc, followed by a rally of 1/cc, but toward the close of the afternoon board values again declined, and the market closed at about inside figures.

Corn was moderately active and weaker early in the session, but gradually became firmer and closed a shade higher than on Saturday. An increase of 380,000 bushels in the visible supply statement was the cause of the early weakness, but with large clearings and a fair shipping inquiry, values improved ruled steady, closing without material change.

Mess pork was unchanged. Lard was active and strong, and prices were advanced 12% @17% with good inquiries from shorts, and the market closed at nearly even figures. Short ribs were in very active speculative demand. Prices advanced 35@37%c, receded 71/2010c, rallied again and closed for the day at top figures.

The Georgia Real Estate Company

This property was bought originally by the Baltimore syndicate, they regarding it as susceptible of being made one of the most attractive in the ble of being made one of the most attractive in the city.

Here is a rare opportunity to secure a home in a strictly first-class part of Atlanta. Peters park, just opposite this property, affords the same pleasure as if literally attached. Then the Gentlemen's Driving Park is just a short distance north on a magnificent shaded and macadamized road. The increasing demand for choice lots in desirable places is necessarily advancing the price all the time, Wealthy men are coming into Atlanta in large numbers and will buy such lots at any price rather than select undesirable streets. Then now is the time to buy you a permanent home while the lots are so cheap. Call at my office for plats or information. H. L. WILSON, Real Estate Agent, dtf

Mr. Sternberg intends tonight to play Liszt's Second Rhapsodie Hongroie, which he played at his second concert with such marvelous brilliancy that it created quite an extraordinary enthusiasm amongst the very select audience.

DAVENPORT JACKSON'S DEATH.

The Unexpected Death of a Little Son of Captain Henry Jackson.

Yesterday the home of Captain and Mrs. Herry Jackson was saddened by the death of their little son Davenport.

The little fellow, who was about seven years of see, died at two o'clock yesterday morning. Several days ago he was taken ill, and Sunday morning measles developed. During the day he was quite sick, and complications arising, he grew worse rapidly. Near midnight Sunday night his condition improved and his mind became clear. The family became hopeful of his recovery but the little sufferer was impressed with a belief that his death was near. He did not fear to die, but looking into the face of his mother and grandmother, the widow of General Thomas R. R. Cobb, sai 1: "Grandmother is much older than I am; and mother is much older than I am. It seems so strange that I should go to heaven first. But I will wait for you there."

IS IT USURY?

A SUPERIOR COURT JURY MAKES A

dons Charge Usury When They Land Money— They Give a Verdict Against the Home Association-Interesting Question,

The case of the Atlanta Home Building and Loan association against F. M. Van Pelt, after occupying the time of the superior court for four days, was ended yesterday in a way which very greatly astonished at least one side in

The jury in figuring out a verdict held that building and loan associations as run in Atlanta were usurers and in passing upon the case at issue gave the association nothing more than the principal of the loan and the lawful rate of interest—namely eight per cent.

That idea of the rights of associations, if given the shape and effect of law, would paralyze them.

They are not built on the 8 per cent plan. The history of the Van Pelt case may be stated as follows:
In 1883 Mr. Van Pelt took fifteen shares of the Home association stock.

A few months later he borrowed on that stock, paying 50 for the money. That is to say, the association took up his stock and advanced him $1,492, taking as security a deed to Mr. Van Pelt's lot on the Boulevard and also his bond in the sum of $3,000 for the payment his fond in the sum of $3,000 for the payment of $30 per month to the close of the associa-

Mr. Van Pelt paid his dues and fines and interest to the amount of something over $900, and then being unable to meet the payments, allowed them to lapse. For three months he made no payments to the association, and on the deferred payments was charged in with interest of five per cent. the association, and on the deferred payments was charged up with interest of five per cent a month. That was done under the rules of the association, but Mr. Van Pelt made a great objection to the rate of interest. In the fall of 1885 the association took steps to foreclose and secure the balance which Mr. Van Pelt had failed to pay.

The case was on the form days before Indeed.

The case was on trial four days before Judge Marshall J. Clarke and a jury.

A great interest was taken in the trial by persons connected with building and loan associations, as the plaintiff made the point that the association had charged usury.

Colonel John A. Wimpy represented Mr. Van Pelt, and Mr. Samuel Barnett, Jr., represented the association.

van Peit, and Mr. Samuel Barnett, Jr., represented the association.

The association claimed $1,417 in addition to the payments already made, while Mr. Van Pelt wanted to pay only the original sum borrowed together with the legal rate of interest less the payments previously made. There were other points made, of course, but they were noted associal interest.

were other points made, of course, but they were not of special interest.

The jury after being out a short time returned a verdict which was everything Mr. Van Pelt could have asked. Instead of giving the association the $1,447 claimed, the judgment was for $535.35 principal, $156 interest and $50 attorney's fees. It seems that the jury simply calculated the interest at 8 per cent on the sum borrowed, deducted the payments made and brought in a verdict for the difference.

Colonel Wimpy was jubilant. Mr. Barnett was surprised, and says he will move for a new trial and has no doubt the court will creat it.

MISSIONARY MASS MEETINGS.

Southern Methodists to Begin an Aggres-sive Work in Atlanta. The approaching session of the North Georgia conference board of missions in this city will be an important event in religious circles. gia conference board of missions in this city will be an important event in religious circles. A large attendance is expected, including not only the members of the board and the presiding elders, but many distinguished visitors. During the session a series of missionary mass meetings will be held. Some idea of the character and scope of these meetings may be gathered from the following extract, tlipped from an Atlanta letter in the Wesleyan Christlan Advocate:

Surely our Southern Methodists ought to begin a more aggresive policy of agitation. Our larger cities are the centers from which flow out the influences that control the sections round about. When Atlanta voted out the barrooms it was the most potential factor in the ultimate downfall of the liquor power which the south has ever known. We must attack the centers, and in such a way as to attract attention. This is what the preachers' meeting of Atlanta determined to do by a series of missionary mass meetings of such a character as we trust will make the occasion memorable for a generation.

The North Georgia conference board of missions will meet on Wednesday, April 27. On Tuesday night, the 26th, the first mass meeting will be held in Trinity church; the second on Wednesday night at First church, and on Thursday night all the other Methodist churches of the city will be thrown open. Such programmes will be presented to the public as Atlanta has rarely, if ever, enjoyed.

thrown open. Such programmes will be presented to the public as Atlanta has rarely, if ever, enjoyed.

Bishop Granbery, who has charge of our mission in Biszil, and who has but recently returned from that field, Bishop Hendrix, who in company with Bishop Marvin made the tour of the world inspecting our missionary stations, and Bishop Key, who has charge of our Mexican border work, will be present and deliver one or more addresses. Bishop Wilson is expected to reach Baltimore on April 20, and if he does he will almost certainly join in these meetings. Private letters say that the horrors of heathenism have mightily moved his soul When next he stands before the church at home, he will be a flame of fire for the cause of the perishing millions beyond the seas. Dr. John, of Nashville, our missionary secretary, who has indeed magnified his office, will also be present with a fund of missionary information not to be 30-tained from any other source. There will be other speakers among the most gifted members of the Noth Georgia conference.

The programme for the occasion will be made public at an early day.

ONE NEGRO SHOOTS ANOTHER.

Jim Jones Sends a Bullet Into Mose Page's Flesh at the Chattahoochee River. Intelligence of a shooting on the Chatta-hoochee river, near the Chattahoochee brick company's convict yards, reached the city early yesterday morning, and created no little com-ment, because of the character of the rumors which quickly became current.

The rumors indicated that three negro mensil living in Atlanta, had gone out to the river on a hunt, and that they had fallen out and fought, using pistols promiseuously. One rumor had two of the men dead and the third mortally wounded, while another represented all three as dead, with their bodies full of bul-

The rumors carefully sifted showed that Jim Jones and Mose Page, two Atlanta negroes, had gone up to a negro friend's home on the Chattahocchee river Sunday afternoon and, remaining all night, started out yesterday morning with their friend for a day along the river bank. With hook and line they passed several hours, having indifferent luck. The banks of the river was lined with green frogs, and Jones was armed with a pistol. The frogs appeared to be good targets, and Jones began shooting at them. He proved a better marksman than fisher, and as the frogs dropped dead about him, Page became anxious to try his hand. Jones, however, declined to give him the pistol, and in a friendly manner Page attempted to take it away. In the scaffle the pistol went off, and the bullet entered Page's thigh, making a painful and dangerous wound. The shooting was purely accidental, but it spoiled the day's fun. Jones and his friend carried Page to the friend's house, where medical aid was secured. The ball was extracted, and Page will spend several weeks in the country The rumors carefully sifted showed that Jim Page will spend several weeks in the country

He was not at all backward in statinghis suspicions and entered upon a search of the premises. Some burned hoops, which would have fitted a 20-gallon keg, were found and evidence secured which implicated one Hiram B. Hearing, another neighbor. Hearing's house was accordingly visited, and when Mr. Jett announced his business the fellow promptly owned up, and made a full confession as to how Martin and himself had stolen the package.

iness the fellow promptly owned up, and made a full confession as to how Martin and himself had stolen the package.

Jett is not an officer, but he was after the fellows who stole his whisky, so he took Hearing into custody and started for Martin's, only to find upon arriving there that the bird had flown. He did not intend that Hearing should give him the slip, so he precured a new clothes line, with which he bound the prisoner's arms in a manner which made him practically helpless.

Yesterday morning the pair boarded the train for Atlanta, Jett keeping a close grip on one end of the rope with which he had bound Hearing. Upon reaching the city they attracted much attention as they proceeded from the depot to the office of Commissioner Haight, in the customhouse, Jett walking about eight feet in advance with a firm hold upon the leading rope. The facts were fully explained to the commissioner, who issued a warrant, which was formally served upon Hearing by Deputy Marshal McDonald. The prisoner waived examination, and, in default of bond, was sent to the county jail.

It is Remarkable

How the use of typewriters has grown in the last few years. This growth has created and fos tered a demand which has been met fully and sat isfactorily by the manufacturers of the Remington Standard Typewriter. For an embodiment of all those elements that enter into a perfect writing machine simple, durable, and rapid, the Remington stands without an equal. Scores of them acin use in Atlanta; every business and industrial school in the city of New York, of any standing, teaches the Remington, the government in Washington uses over five hundred, and it is only a question of time when the young man and woman who seeks an office position, will be expected to know how to use this machine, it being now conceded to be the standard the whole world over. No business office is complete without it. Call or send for catalogue at the headquarters, 2½ Marietta street. Full line of supplies. W. T. Crenshaw, sole dealer for Alabama and Georgia.

The Police Commission Meets and Talks Over the Fossibility of a Mutual Aid Society—The Business of the Past Month Sketched—The Places at Park and the Comstery.

During a regular monthly session of the beard of police commissioners, held last night in their chamber at police headquarters, a policeman's aid association was suggested by Chairman English, and the suggestion met with

The meeting was attended by Commissioner English, chairman, and Commissioners Martin, Goldsmith and Brotherton.

Immediately after the journal of the last meeting of the body had been read, Chief Con-nolly informed the body that he had transmitted to the general council the papers in the case of George Wright, an ex-member of the force, who had been so seriously injured in the service of the city that he was not physically able to discharge the duties of a patrolman.

"I am glad that the case of Mr. Wright has been brought to my attention," said Chairman English, "for some time past I have been studying a plan for an aid society among the members of the police force, and take this occasion to suggest it to the board."

"That is a very essential thing. I should think," said Mr. Martin.
"Yes, and I think we should see that one is organized," said Commissioner Goldsmith. 'I have no doubt about the success of a be nevolent or aid association of this kind," said Chairman English. "As it is, if a good officer becomes injured or is taken sick he simply loses his time. In many instances the man's family is entirely dependent upon his daily wages for a living. An association of this kind would help him through greatly."

"I am only surprised that the men have not had one before," said Commissioner Broth-

"They had, but it did not succeed because it was not properly managed," said Chairman English. "Now I suggest that a committee from the board be appointed to consult with the members of the force and see what they the members of the force and see what they think of it. Then we can secure considerable help from the citizens, and with a dollar or two each month off the men's salary, we can have quite a relief fund in a short time. A charter can easily be secured, and the asso-ciation made a good one."

"I'll draw the application for a charter for nothing," said Mr. Martin.

"And I'll contribute liberally to the association," said Chairman English.

"I move," said Mr. Goldsmith, "that the chairman appoint a committee to arrange a plan for the association."

The chairman named Messrs. Goldsmith, Martin and Connolly as that committee.

Martin and Connolly as that committee.

A letter from George Hamilton was presented the board. Mr. Hamilton is one of the twenty-seven who were dropped from the roll at the last general election. In the letter Mr. Hamilton asked to be put back upon the force. Accompanying the letter was a physician's certificate showing Mr. Hamilton to be in fine physical condition.

"Well, I'm glad George has got well." said Mr. Goldsmith, lifting his eyeglasses off his nose very gracefully.

"Yes, health is a mighty good thing," said Mr. Brotherton, crossing his arms a little below

"Well, gentlemen, I don't know what you think-about it, but I am willing to put Mr. Hamilton back on the force," said Chairman English, "for he made a good officer."

"I shouldn't object," said Mr. Martin, "to giving him the first vacancy since his health has been restored. In fact, the only reason I yoted against Mr. Hamilton was bis illness."

"Oh, you know he had been sitting up with a sick wife, and his illness was simply a nervous prostration, brought about by watching," said Chairman English.

FLOWER STEALING.

Another Session to be Held in Atlanta the THE QUESTION EMPHATICALLY DISCOURSED UPON BY ACITIZEN:

nost Impossible to Keep Flowers in the Yard-The Attention of the Police Invoked to Suppress the Stealing of Flowers.

"Have you heard anything of this flower stealing that is now going on?" was the question asked of a Constitution reporter last evening by a prominent citizen. A negative reply being given the citizen continued:

Another Session to be Held in Atlanta the Coming Summer.

Dr. G. J. Orr, the state school commissioner, has received the funds to enable him to hold another Peabody institute in Atlanta the coming summer, beginning on the 18th of July and continuing four weeks.

"The success of the last institute was very great," said Dr. Orr last evening; "more marked than when we held half a dozen institutes at different points, the attendance being much larger and teachers far more interested. I shall urge the attendance at the coming institute of every county commissioner in the state, and expect to see also a very large body of teachers present. I sm receiving letters of inquiry concerning it frequently, showing a popular interest. The corps of instructors has not been selected as yet, but no pains will be spared in getting the best men to be had in the several departments. My intention is to secure an eminent physician to deliver one or more lectures on the effect of opiates and alcoholic stimulants on the human system; also an eminent occulist to lecture on the severand how to preserve it—a most im-Why, it is becoming so that it is almost impossible to keep flowers in the yard. My wife, a few weeks' ago, purchased quite a number of dollars' worth of bulbs and plants, which were carefully set out in beds in our front yard, but as soon as the blossoms began to show them-selves, just so soon did they begin to disappear, and we now are about flowerless.'

"But are you sure they were stolen?" was

"I know they were," was the emphatic reply. "But mine is not the only case, I can assure you. Within a couple of weeks I have heard of quite a number of cases where well heard of quite a number of cases where well known citizens have suffered quite heavily from these depredations, and it surprises me that something has not been done by the po-hee to stop it. It costs considerable to beautify our grounds with flowers, and there is no denying the fact that yards so adorned add greatly to the attractiveness of a city, but if this stealing is kept up I, for one, shall do way with flower beds in my yard." away with flower beds in my yard."
"What class of people is it that steals the

"They are often children of people "They are often children of people who are perfectly able to supply their families with flowers, though I know of cases where persons of mature years, and who lay claim to great repectability, stooped to this business. I have heard of instances where young ladies received from young men who were waiting upon them, flowers which they boastingly announced had been pilfered from somebody's front yard, and for this confession received the smiles and commendations of their fair friends. Now I consider the theft of flowers upst as much of a crime as the theft of money just as much of a crime as the theft of money or other valuables, and unless the thing is speedily stopped in my locality I shall set a watch and see to it that some one is made to suffer."

"Has nothing been done to stop it?"
"Idon't think the police have done anything, but I heard that one gentleman, who had suffered to the extent of several dollars, set a detective, to watch his flower beds one night, and as a result the son of a very respectable citizen, who was one of a party of five boys out on a lark, was caught in the act of stealing the flowers. The gentleman intended at first to have the boy locked up and severely punished, as an example, but at the earnest punished, as an example, but at the earnest solicitation of his parent; who paid the cost of detecting the thief, and the latter's promise to sin no more, he was let off."

"Outing" Growing Popular.

To take an "outing" is English, you know and the thing is growing popular over here. Small parties now go for a tramp of a Sunday, or go boating, or bicycling, or fishing as regularly as if it were part of the weekly life. So it is a part and a good part. It ought to be encouraged. Whenever overcome by faintness or dizziness in your trips take a few of BRAN-DRETH'S PILLS. They keep the blood in good order, the head clear and steady, and the nerves under mental control.
